Administrative Note:

Details regarding the acquisition of this collection are vague but it is thought to have been acquired in the summer of 1970. Processing work has been done several times since its acquisition with the most recent completed in May 2013. It was also at this time the collection was transferred to the Sage Colleges Archives and Special Collections.

Biographic/Historical Note:

Ian Hamilton Finlay is probably best known for being a forerunner in the concrete poetry movement of the mid-twentieth century. He was born in 1925 in the Bahamas to Scottish parents and moved to Scotland at the age of six to attend boarding school. He decided to become an artist when he was a teenager. Finlay briefly attended the Glasgow School of the Arts but ultimately dropped out before completing a degree.

Following World War II, Finlay moved to the island of Rousay and worked to establish himself as a reputable artist. In addition to painting, drawing and printmaking, he wrote plays, poems and short stories. In 1958, Finlay published a collection of short stories, The Sea Bed and Other Stories. Three years later, a collection of his poems, The Dancers Inherit the Party, was published. Finlay's writing mixed classical typography with modern imagery and alluded to historical events like the French Revolution, World War II and Nazism. The visual form and layout of his poetry was just as an important as the content, which was the foundation of concrete poetry.

In 1961, Finlay founded the Wild Hawthorn Press with Jessie McGuffie. Initially, this press published Finlay's writings as well as the work of other innovative poets like Louis Zukofsky and Lorine Neidecker but by the end of the 1960s, the press would only print Finlay's work. Finlay became heavily involved in the concrete poetry movement in the 1960s. By the end of the decade, he was internationally known as Britain's foremost concrete poet as well as one of the most active supporters.

In 1966, Finlay and his family moved to a property in Scotland's Southern Uplands. It was around the same time, he began to set his poems in nature. He created the well-known sculpture garden, Little Sparta on the grounds of his new home. This garden incorporated his poetry in sculptural form with traditional garden elements such as temples and traditional sculpture. Throughout his later career, Finlay assisted in creating countless sculptures and gardens across Europe.

Throughout his career, Finlay received many honors and awards including honorary degrees from the University of Aberdeen, Herio-Watt University and the University of Dundee. He was given the title, Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth II in 2003. Finlay's work has been exhibited in many museums and galleries across the world. He was also nominated for the Tate Gallery's Turner Prize in 1985. At the time of his death in 2006, Finlay was seen not only as a major contributor to concrete poetry but also to modern art.

Scope and Content Note:

This collection contains correspondence between Ian Hamilton Finlay and many of the avant-garde poets of the 1960s. Finlay corresponded with many well-known poets from across the world. The collection includes correspondence from August de Campos, Ernst Jandl, Max Bense, Stephen Bann, Louis Zukofsky, Lorine Niedecker and Dom Sylvester Houedard. The material in the collection dates from 1960 to 1969, with the bulk dating between 1963 and 1967. While it mostly holds letters and postcards, it also includes photographs, drawings, poems, and gallery/exhibit advertisements. Most of these items were included with a letter. A large number of the original envelopes can be found.

The majority of the correspondence is written in English but some items are written in other languages such as French and Italian. These are noted in the Box and Folder listing. The collection is arranged by alphabetical order by sender. Then, they collection is arranged in chronological order. It almost entirely consists of letters sent to Finlay. There is, however, one letter that was written by him.

The correspondence deals mostly with contemporary and avant-garde poetry matters, art movements and Finlay's capacity as publisher of Wild Hawthorn Press. The correspondence shows how deeply Finlay was involved in the concrete poetry movement. In many of the letters, the sender includes examples of her poems for Finlay to review. It is common for the writer to ask for feedback or advice regarding some writing or professional matter. Many of the senders wrote to tell Finlay about professional accomplishments. While many of the letters were written in a professional capacity, some of the correspondence is more personal in nature. Additionally, it was common for the senders to give updates on aspects of their personal lives in the correspondence. It can be gleaned from the correspondence that Finlay developed close friendships with many of his correspondents.
